

Third Wave Goes to the Movies

To celebrate the last ten great years of Third Wave Foundation, and usher in many more, we've been working on a film! This short film explores the work of the organization in the greater context of the feminist movement of the last ten years. It also speaks to the hope that many of our founders and friends have for us in the future. The film speaks to the struggle and success of our grantee organizations like Colectiva de Mujeres and Exhale, as well as the support of our long time friends of Gloria Steinem, Tracy Burt, Stephanie Yang and many many more. We can't wait to share it, so join us at upcoming Third Wave events to view this work of love.

The film-maker in action is a recent Third Wave scholarship recipient, Shalini Kantayya (working with director of photography Arsenio Assin) who is a filmmaker, educator, and activist who uses film/video as a tool to educate, inspire, and empower young people.
