

Women's Educational Media

Women's Educational Media is currently in post-production on the latest film in the Respect For All Project, Straightlaced. Straightlaced features diverse teenagers talking with breathtaking honesty about gender performance expectations and the homophobia at the heart of it all. With candid interviews with over 50 teens, Straightlaced gives voice to young people on all points on the gender role spectrum who choose to either adhere to, or resist, traditional gender role expectations.

Upon completion of the film in 2008, Straightlaced will become the first-ever educational campaign to directly address high schools students about the pervasive and painful effects of the pressure to conform to gender performance norms and the connection to homophobia that affects everyone, regardless of their sexual orientation.

For more information about Straightlaced and the work of the Respect For All Project, please visit: <http://www.womedia.org/straightlaced.htm>.