

The National Women’s Law Center continues to be at the forefront of efforts to combat pharmacist refusals to fill prescriptions for contraception. Read Grace's story to see how the National Women’s Law Center recently helped one Seattle-area woman fight back.

In addition, the Center’s 2007 update of its legal guide on refusals, Don’t Take "NO" for an Answer, provides detailed information on laws and regulations that can be used to counter pharmacy refusals—highlighting recent successes and exploring the continued proliferation of refusals despite the FDA’s decision that emergency contraception can be sold over-the-counter.