

Ipas

August 2008

Fostering the next generation of reproductive-justice advocates

Young activists will determine the future of the reproductive-justice movement. In June 2008, Ipas published and printed 1,000 copies of an exciting new resource for young activists interested in reproductive justice issues – the Advo.Kit. The kit contains tips, resources, and activities on abortion advocacy and its links to other social movements. The printed kits will be disseminated at conferences and to partner organizations that contain our primary audience (young, social-justice minded activists) over the next year. In addition to paper copies, PDF versions of all the documents will be placed on a dedicated website (www.advo-kit.org) where they will be accessible to young social-justice activists. The link to the site will be distributed via email to our networks and by small postcards handed out at conferences and Ipas events. Ipas plans to launch the site by early 2009 after Ipas gauging reactions to the printed Advo-Kit. For a sneak peak, click here for the Advo.Kit Welcome Page and here for Tips for Future Health Care Providers.