

American Jewish World Service

AJWS Reports

American Jewish World Service (AJWS), an international development organization motivated by Judaism's imperative to pursue justice, is proud to announce the release of the fall edition of its magazine, AJWS Reports.

The Pandemic Stops Here—the theme of this issue, embodies American Jewish World Service's belief that every individual matters in the struggle against injustice. Pandemics like HIV/AIDS—and more broadly, poverty, poor health and human rights abuse—can be overcome when the buck stops with each one of us; with grassroots initiatives; and with activists and concerned individuals around the world.

Inside AJWS Reports you will find:

- The Pandemic Stops Here: testimonials from our partners fighting HIV/AIDS from around the world
- Fighting HIV/AIDS From the Pulpit: Faith-based response to HIV/AIDS stigma and discrimination
- AJWS Activism at the International AIDS Conference: 25 grantees attend the conference in Mexico City and share their views on prevention, care and advocacy
- And more...

AJWS Launches New Video on HIV/AIDS Work

Just in time for World AIDS Day on December 1, AJWS has produced an inspiring new video featuring several of our grantees who attended the XVII International AIDS Conference in Mexico City this past August. In the video, our grantees discuss HIV in their communities and the pioneering community-organizing techniques and innovative educational models they are employing to combat the pandemic.
